This event is part of our inaugural Cortez Williams Lecture Series on The Black Experience in the Southwest, which provides a platform for sharing knowledge with the University and greater New Mexico community. The theme of the 2018 lecture series is: Reaffirming Black Studies for the 21st Century and Beyond.

David Omotoso Stovall, Ph.D.
Professor of Educational Policy Studies and African-American Studies at The University of Illinois at Chicago

The presentation seeks to engage one of the original visions of Black Studies departments in relationship to authentic community engagement. As many Black Studies departments envisioned themselves to be sites of affirmation and critical inquiry, one of the most critical components of this movement is centered in community change. Returning to this idea, the presentation seeks to present critical questions beyond the singular project of academic inquiry, challenging current and emerging Black Studies departments to continue to operate as reflections of the communities they were intended to support.

SPRING 2018 CORTEZ WILLIAMS LECTURE SERIES>

This event is part of our inaugural Cortez Williams Lecture Series on The Black Experience in the Southwest, which provides a platform for sharing knowledge with the University and greater New Mexico community. The theme of the 2018 lecture series is: Reaffirming Black Studies for the 21st Century and Beyond.

LECTURE SERIES SPEAKERS>

COREY D.B. WALKER
January 27

AARON DIXON
February 6

DAVID STOVALL
February 21

ELAINE BROWN
March 19-20

AARON DIXON
April 3

This series is sponsored by the Division for Equity and Inclusion, the Men of Color Initiative and the Albuquerque (NM) Chapter of the Links Incorporated as part of their Black Lives Matter Initiative to address and improve campus climate at the University of New Mexico.

For more information email The Africana Studies Program at afamstds@unm.edu

Educate 2 Liberate

africanastudies.unm.edu > 277.5644