

ADVANCED DOCTORAL STUDENTS

2020 INTERSECTIONAL QUALITATIVE RESEARCH METHODS INSTITUTE

JUNE 21-JUNE 26, 2020

APPLICATIONS DUE DECEMBER 2, 2019

The Latino Research Institute at The University of Texas at Austin is partnering with the Consortium on Race, Gender, and Ethnicity at the University of Maryland, College Park to provide advanced doctoral students a unique training opportunity. Few training institutes in the U.S. focus on qualitative research methods and, currently, none incorporate discussions regarding the intersections of race, gender, class, ethnicity, and other dimensions of inequity. In addition to facilitating these important conversations, this institute provides practical lessons in professional development to intersectional scholars in their pursuit of successful research careers.

GOALS OF INSTITUTE:

- Develop critical race and intersectional perspectives for designing and interpreting research
- Enhance qualitative research data analyses, holistic interpretation, and analytic writing
- Provide guidance on the completion of the doctoral degree and professional development strategies to support transition to a postdoctoral or academic position

THIS YEAR'S CORE FACULTY SPECIALIZE IN THE FOLLOWING AREAS OF SCHOLARSHIP:

- Promoting economic, social, and educational opportunities for working-class families
- Addressing disparities and inequities in health and mental health
- Contextualizing everyday arts and practice as forms of cultural citizenship

SCHOLARS WHO ARE MEXICAN AMERICAN, AFRICAN AMERICAN, NATIVE AMERICAN, PUERTO RICAN OR FROM OTHER SOCIALLY & ECONOMICALLY DISADVANTAGED GROUPS ARE ENCOURAGED TO APPLY.
